Mrs. Frances Niedringhaus Asserts Patrolman's Wild Shot Went Through Group of Men.

SAYS PRISONER WAS STRUCK IN FACE

Hughes Martin, Former Salesman, in Hospital, Wounded, and Police Inquiry Has Been Started.

Mrs. Frances Niedringhaus, wife of Dr. Ralph E. Niedringhaus, 3733 Lindell boulevard, today described in detail the shooting of Hughes Martin, 34 years old, a former department store salesman, as he fled from four policemen at Spring avenue and Lindell boulevard Saturday night. Her complaint to Chief of Police O'Brien yesterday prompted an investigation to determine whether the officers "went too far" by shooting and mistreating an apparently inoffensive citizen. Mar-tin is at the city hospital, a bullet and in each thigh, with no criminal charges against him.

"Was Shooting Wildly."
"I was standing at the southwest corner of Spring and Lindell with my son, walting for my husband. who was putting the automobile away," Mrs. Niedringhaus said to B Post-Dispatch reporter. denly I heard several shots and looked across the street where man was running north across Lin dell boulevard with a uniformed policeman a few feet behind him. Another policeman was following and both were shooting. The one in front-I am sure it was Patrolman Wheeling-was shooting wildly at the man. One bullet went northeast corner. It is a miracle

"Opposite the Coronado Hotel. the man stumbled and fell. The policemen had been gaining in the race, and was right on his heels. He struck the man in the face with a flashlight as he lay there. There was absolutely no occasion for it. A moment later the police autom blie drew up at the curb and the four officers took the man away. Officers Involved.

The officers are Patrolmen Felix Wheeling and Ralph Johnson and Special Officers Walter Cliffe and Douglas Chamblin, all of Laclede According to the district report, they were sent out at 11:15 p. m. on a complaint that two susicious-looking men were loitering at the mouth of an alley south of Lindell boulevard. Martin and another man were searched, but Martin ran away while being questioned. Patrolmen Wheeling and Johnson fired in the air over Marstop, Wheeling fired at his legs, questioned Martin at city hospital today. He said he was an extra salesman at a downtown store during the holiday season and since had been out of work. Previously he worked for four years as an exchange desk clerk in another store.

"I was walking from a barber shop to my rooming house at 3923 Westminster place when the police car drew up as I crossed the alley." he related. "They searched me and another pedestrian and then told me to 'go on home.' I was almost to Lindell when the machine pulled up beside me again One of them said, 'Don't move,' and I argued with them to let me telephone the house first if they were going to arrest me. Then suddenly I got scared and ran When I fell down with the bullets in me a policeman hit me on the forehead with something hard.

Capt. Maguire of Laclede District described Wheeling as "an average policeman." "I neither condemn nor approve his conduct in this case," he said. Inspector of Police Vasey is conducting the official investigation.

15 DEATHS CAUSED BY GAS

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Illumi nating gas took the lives of 11 persons here yesterday, two of them infants. George McQuarrie. his wife, Mary, and an unidentified woman were found dead in the McQuarrie home in Brooklyn. A open and all windows in the apartment were shut. Mrs. Julia Hill and her 2-months-old son were found dead in bed by George Hill when he returned from work. Carbon monoxide, due to a gas stove's burning all day in an unventilate room is believed to have cause their deaths. Nine-weeks-old Rose Bogoshian was asphyxiated by gas from a leaky pipe near her crib Tired after a night of dancing, Augusta Krell, 20, flung her clothes or a get jet, accidentally turned on the gas and went to bed. She was asphyxiated. Other victims of gas were Peter McMahon of Peekskill; Andrew Keleska of Mineola. N. Y. George Sonnecksen and Thomas McDermott of Brooklyn.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.-Gas escaping from stoves yesterday caused the deaths of four persons in this city.

TRUCK DRIVER SHOT IN HAND IN FIGHTING OFF HOLDUP MAN Tells Police He Seized Revolver of

gle Shot Was Fired.

A truck driver's tussle with a holdup man, in which the driver was shot through the right hand before the robber was finally beaten off, was disclosed yesterday when police investigated the report of a physician that a man with a buflet wound in the hand had ought medical attention at his office, at Grand and Page boule-

Officers found the man, with his hand bandaged, at the office of the Lubrite Sales Corporation, Washinington boulevard and Theresa avenue, where he is employed. He said he was Albert Parres, 21 years old, of 405 North Fifty-ninth street. East St. Louis, and that he had not reported the holdup to the police because he thought his foreman had done so.

About 8 p. m. Saturday, he said, e was driving his truck east in houteau avenue at Twenty-first street when two men appeared in the street in front signaling for him to stop. One of them then leaped on the machine with a re-volver and ordered him to "Reach 'em up high." While the robber was searching him, he related, he seized the weapon and in the en-suing struggle a shot was fired. the bullet piercing his hand. The robbers then fled and Parres drove to the Lubrite office before seeking medical attention. His employer said the holdup was not reported because he didn't know the driver's last name.

The attitude of supporters o ther candidates toward the Mayor is much the same as that spirit one finds in boys' baseball games against the one who always wants pitch and enforces his desire by his superior size and strength. They feel that he has had the office long nough and should step aside after 12 years to give some one else

That spirit and the growing be lef in organization ranks that if i oes not center upon another candidate, the chances of Miller will materially enhanced, really represents the opposition to the Mayor in political circles. The present guess as to his fuare course of action is that he will file for the office if the present situation is not materially, altered some political hopes are certain to e wrecked in February.

SONG OF A KANSAS WIFE. (Pratt Republican.)

The night was dark and dreary; The air was full of sleet, My husband joined the K. K. K. And swiped my last clean sheet.

Mr. Coolidge has dedicated the next four years to economy. Next year, for instance, the budget shows a saving of $266,000,000. We might imagine that this represents actual feats in thrift, but Bill Hard has Lappily saved us from that ingenuousness. He says in the current Nation that $219,of this can be accounted for in the lesser costs for next year of the bonus, pensions, loans to the railroads, caring for disabled soldiers, maintaining the public debt and increased earnings by reason of greater business use of the postoffice. In other words, they are the purely automatic savings which would have operated for any administration. This leaves 20 per cent to be accounted for by taking Pullman cars instead of special trains and the other dime-bankisms with which Mr. Coolidge has lately regaled us. Come, Bill. The first thing we know you will have us believing that the man is a spendthrift. The answer to a question raised by French editors, as to which nation reads most books, was recently published. The largest number of books are written, published and read in France, England and Germany. Germany had to give up the second place, that she occupied before the war, to England, and now stands third. This, however, is to be understood with certain restrictions. France and England take the lead in belletristic literature; the greatest number of novels, poems and dramas are published and sold in French and after that in English. But in scientific literature the German book trade holds now as before, the first place. The largest number of medical and historical works are published in Germany, while England since the war has taken the lead in technical literature. The price of German and English books is almost the same; the French works are nearly 50 per cent cheaper.

Sir: The eclipse was literally and characteristically an exclusive American performance. Its publicity campaign was good. The motivation appeal in the press notices was played up well. STYLES

There are styles and fashions in motion picture entertainments just as there are modes and foibles for beautiful women. Paris sets most of the feminine fashions and St. Louis sets nearly all screen standards.

All over America wellposted screen fans have echoed a demand for the "Missouri Theatre style of motion picture entertain-ment." This type of fascinating program was originated in the Missourithe Famous Players theatre of St. Louis.

There's a deft, peppy quality to the original, imaginative amusement programs created in this favorite amusement center. No wonder they have appealed to the nation. Here and in hundreds of other cities such programs are built around the Famous Players-Lasky Pictures-always the backbone of any good entertainment program.

Team Will Start on Road Trip Unbeaten, if the Bengals Are Trimmed.

The Washington University and the University of Missouri basketball teams will clash in their first conference game at the Collseum tonight before what is expected to be a record attendance. There has been an unusually heavy advance sale of seats. The game will start Tonight's battle ought to be a furious affair, despite the fact that the Pikers are generally favored to capture the verdict. The Tigers have won three of their five games to date, and although they are not regarded as a powerful outfit. Coach Bond's men have occasionally shown flashes of real ability. In Wheat, Joyner and McMillan, Missoufi has three good forwards. Wheat is a veteran of long experieice and McMillan played briltliantly against Drake, Saturday.

Pikers Best on "Dope."

The Pikers, on the other hand, have only engaged in two conference battles, but gave brilliant en casion. Washington won from Ok-lahoma, which later defeated the Tigers, and from Drake by a 40-& score. Missouri was barely able to win from Drake; 24 to 20. Thus the "dope" indicates a Piker victory by a comfortable margin, but Coach Don White's men are looking for a bitter strugrie with the clan from Columbia.

Yearling Setter Wins Puppy Stake

Mr. Eugene's Ghost, Mississippi Bred Best in Central

By A. F. Hochwalt.

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., Jan. Ghost, owned by W. E. Garland of Crystal Springs, Miss., won the puppy stake of the Central States feld triels, which was decided here vesterday, Second place was w by the pointer, Queen Bimpkins. owned by W. B. Wrenne of Nasa-ville, Tenn. Third by the pointer Jane Hall, owned by T. H. Good of Jackson, Tenn., and fourth by the setter, May Lark Valuent. owned by Albert Leggett of Jack

A very average field of yearlings competed in this stake, many of the pupples being prospects for next year's derby.

The stake was interesting in that it brought field trial patrons here from all parts of the United States, many of them who are looking for prospects to run in the big events Winner Shows Rent Class.

The winner of the stake is a fine, upstanding setter which already shows the range, the speed and the style and intelligence of a much older dog. He was easily the class of the stake and won by rearest of the true whiters heart.

How a modest estate is saved $2,000 taxes

SIMPLY by selecting securities according to a knowledge of the tax laws, it is shown in this booklet how an exate of moderate size is saved $2,000 in estate and inheritance taxes.

That is an example of the practical usefulness of this booklet to those who are concerned about how federal and state taxes may affect the provision made for their dependents. The larger the estate, the more important this subject becomes.

Among the salient topics with which this book deals, in text that is non-technical and easy to understand, are-

A discussion of Federal Estate taxes.

Points of interest in the Inheritance tax laws of the various states affecting investment holdings. The question of "multiple taxation" as applied to the securities of companies operating in several states. The status, from an Inheritance tax standpoint, of various types of bonds, stocks, and other forms of investments. The importance of an analysis of security holdings to fit them to the tax sitLnheritance Gavation HALSEY, STUART & CO.

We shall welcome the opportunity to place this booklet in the hands of any one to whom't may be useful.

CONVENTION OPENS

Meeting of Missouri Diocese Attended by About 200 Delegates.

The eighty-first annual conven-tion of the Missouri Diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church opened at Christ Church Cathedral at 9 a. m. today with an address by Bishop Frederick F. Johnson. About 200 delegates and several of ficials of the church from other states are attending the sessions, which will continue through Thurs-

The convention this year will devote itself chiefly to routine work with five business sessions scheduled, all of which will be held at Schuyler Memorial House, 1210 Locust street. Tomorrow after-noon the Rev. G. Warfield Hobbs, representing the National Council in New York, will deliver an address on the work of the council, and tomorrow evening the dele-gates will visit St. Luke's Hospital at 6 o'clock and will be guests of the board of directors and Superintendent at dinner at 7. There will be no Bishop's reception this year. After adjournment Thursday aftrnoon, the electoral body will assemble for election of three new members of the Cathedral Chap-ter, and at 8 p. m. the clergy will-attend the annual meeting of the St. Luke's Hospital Association. An address on "Social Service was delivered by the Rev. Robert P. Kreitler, rector of St. Luke's Church, Scranton, Pa., at a mass meeting of the delegates held at Christ Church Cathedral last night preliminary to the formal opening of the convention.

Attorneys to Appeal; Woman Was Convicted in Trial in Which Insanity Was Defense.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 27.-Mrs. Winona Green, convicted of murder in connection with the killing of her father-in-law, J. R. last August, was denied a new trial in Circuit Court today and was sentenced by Judge Wade to life Attorneys nounced that an appeal would be

Mrs. Green was arrested at Pueblo, Colo., last October, following the fatal wounding of Green and the disappearance of the woman's mother-in-law, near Fisher, Ok. She was returned to Little Rock, and, according to the police, admitted killing both Green and his wife.

Her trial and conviction followed in which a jury decided she was esponsible mentally for her acts. Insanity at the time of the killing was the defense offered at the murder trial.

When asked the usual question

if she had any reason why seff-tence should not be imposed, Mrs. Green told the Court: "I am no more guilty than you are, Judge." She declined an offer to be sent to the State Hospital for Nervous

Judge Wade told her to call him up or communicate with him otherwise "when you get ready to tell the truth about these murders."

BANKER'S WIFE RESISTS NEGRO ROBBER IN HOLDUP

a negro, who knocked he own with a piece of lead pipe as she emerged yesterday afternoon from the Grand Central Terminal underground passageway leading to the Hotel Roosevelt, Mrs. John Edward Rovensky, wife of a New York banker, waterday afternoon from the banker was a second York banker, frustrated the at tempted holdup by her screams as she lay bleeding a few feet from the hotel.

Mrs. Rovensky, whose husband is a vice president of the National Bank of Commerce, had been shop ping and was returning to the ho tel when the assailant suddenly ap peared. The negro had evidently observed the fur coat and dangling purse of the banker's wife and struck her just as she stepped through the first glass doorway leading to the hotel.

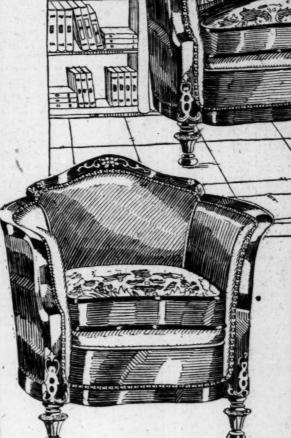

Mrs. Rovensky, who was injured two weeks ago in an automobile accident, was knocked down and struck repeatedly. She fought back desperately, her screams bringing guests and employes of the hotel. Her pluck saved her the loss of a necklace and rings, which the robber tried to tear from her fingers. The negro escaped.

TENRY dropped a spoon into the ice-bin and mentioned that famous amour, the love of Mike. Myrtle bounded round the counmous amour, the love wandering brother-in-law; Admah had an impression of a blowsy middle-aged woman with a floppy person. Her hands were still wet with the soapy water in which she had been washing soda glasses.

"Well," drawled Admah with a sickly humor when he had been led to the upstairs apartment where the Jo Holtzes now lived in intimate contact with their business, "I've stayed with Uncle Lafe as Both Jo and Myrtle proved surprisingly kind. Myrtle's kindness, he felt, was founded on the luxurious joy of patronizing a relative whom she had long envied for his greatness in the world. But Jo betrayed a generosity quite unsuspected in his narrow heart and mind.

"Look yuh, Ad," he said bash- | tary state which he had imposed fully when Myrtle had left the room, "part o' this here business always has been yours. It didn't seem much to you once, I reckon. But if we get together the way we ust to we could shore make things

"That's right nice of you," drawled Admah wearily. "But I don't know. Do you suppose Myrtle would want me to have a room here and eat with you folks?"

Myrtle's consent obtained, Jo's offer was left in a state of suspended animation. Admah was allotted a room next to an alley; he was supposed to make his own bed, but he never did. Sometimes he crept under the blankets through the same fold that he had left open when he got out in the morning. Sometimes Myrtle would relent and 'straighten up' when he was away on one of his interminable walks. Once he caught her scolding to herself and calling him "shiftless." The adjective, applied by Myrtle to Ad-mah, amused him rather wickedly. He walked a great deal, choosing obscure streets where he would be least likely to encounter people whom he had known. In the few crowded blocks which he must traverse on his way to escape he would go rapidly, his eyes on the sidewalk. This was his ostrich fashion of hiding from the world; and few people recognized him. The gossips had fed on him and thrown the scraps aside. After his first month over the Red Front Store his sister-in-law took to bullying. At first she tested him by timid jabs and pinches. then finding that the family giant was broken she sneered in his face and mocked him of his fall.

He slept and ate and smoked and walked and read; dull business for a dulled man. Good books bored him, so he borrowed trash from a circulating library on the border of Darktown. Now and then he would exchange with Henry, whose year in a freshwater college had given him little save an abominable taste in cigarettes and fiction. Admah looked on Henry with an easy tolerance, but avoided him because the boy was inclined to patronize his parents. went Admah's days and nights, vague as mist and as unsatisfying. Occasionally he would try to work himself into a passion over the behavior of his wife. Sometimes he would consider seeing Atterbury and revealing incriminating facts as to the plot that had dethroned him. "Tomorrow," whispered the devil-at-the-keyhole. . That was it. Lots of tomorrows. Plenty of time for the confounding of his enemies and the making of his new fortune. . . A few more days to think, to decide what it was all about. .

One afternoon-it was early in September and the streets were wilted things-he had a glimpse of Margaret. He had crossed Grand avenue and was slinking away toward the poorer quarter when he glanced up, compelled by that feeling which many of us have when we are being looked at. A Ford car, equipped with disc wheels, an underslung, torpedo-shaped body and a long wheelbase, stood against the curb, very worldly in its disguise. Under the canopy top Admah saw a blue hat, shading the pretty face that smiled at him.

If she called out her voice was drowned in the rattle of traffic. Her friendly, sisterly gesture showed eagerness, a desire to listen to all he had to say. But he paused no more than an instant to lift his hat and smile back at her. Then with lowered eyes he shuffled on his way. He couldn't say just why he hadn't crossed over. Possibly it was because he lacked the in itiative to resume a friendship which she so plainly offered and he so pitifully needed.

CHAPTER 82.

For some prisoners, they say, years of confinement pass quickly. Rebellion at first, then readjustment to an even grayness where yesterday seems to overlap tomorrow. Myrtle got used to the paying guest whom she enjoyed bulling and Admah got used to Myrtle and the mildewed domesticity which surrounded her. The tousled bed, the torn newspapers, co, they all belonged to the - and made no attempt to regain it.

In the semi-darkness she caught a glimpse of his rugged profile, fixed in contemplation; a spiritist might have summoned that face out of the abysm of death, moulded it from the shadows. Once she called his name, "Admah!" as if to bring him back, but it was not until they had reached Inness street that she heard his voice sounding out of the

"What's she doing there-in the old house?"
"I don't know, Admah," she answered, and was not at all sure that he had heard her. If only she could have reached out to him then. But every soul is a hermit. It must fight its devils in its solitary cell. Poor Admah! He had created so many. Like every other infatuated man who has brought large talents to the shrine of a false god, he would go on to the end, fighting for his misplaced faith. What can I do to help him? thought Margaret Peake, uttering a prayer she had said for him a thousand times. What indeed? Who can bring sight to him whose eyes are gone?

She turned her car at the familiar horse-block. The storm had paused for an instant, and the old house, whose every nail she had known, stood before, her in a sooty, sulphurous light; a chain of mud puddles linked across a lawn upon which her family had prided itself for four generations. Although no stone had been misplaced the house had a scarred look; inner corruption often disfigures the countenance. The windows, with light oozing through drawn shades, leered dissolutely. A king dethroned and drinking with cabmen might look like that. She put her hand on Admah's arm and guided him up the walk. From one of the tall pillars the sign "Rooms to Let" swung crookedly by a string. The electric bell had lost its button, but a touch on the exposed entrails set off a guttural alarm inside the house.

Margaret dreaded the opening of the door, not so much for herself as for Admah. She had had her shock that afternoon. But poor Admah must endure this, another stone upon a mound of troubles that had crushed the spirit out of . . The latch clicked, the hinges turned and in the doorway stood a woman whom she had not seen before. Under a remarkable mound of false yellow hair she showed cheeks that were soft and bulging like an overripe pear and so thick with powder that they threatened a pale duststorm at every quick turn of the head. "Oh, Miss Peake," she called out in a sort of ecstasy at the name of Peake, "Won't you come in, and bring your genlman friend? I'm so sorry I wasn't in this afternoon when you called.' A glance into the drawing room showed Margaret a set of wild gilt cal piano player, a number of glassy engravings on the walls, were beginning to peel. She looked the other way. "I never had the pleasha of meetin' you befo', Miss Peake," went on the landlady with a series of smirks and simpers. "But I knew your grandfather well. Oh, intimate. He was a fine geniman. Yes, indeed, I knew him well."

The woman might have been lying, but Margaret felt that she was not. She had known Judge Peake; Judge Peake's granddaughter, with an involuntary shrinking away from the door that had once been his, realized how she had known

"Has there been any change?" asked Margaret, turning her eyes

A WARM, "COMFY" MEAL Bodily warmth that will resist cold comes from the food you eat, not from the clothing you wear. Fortify yourself against cold by eating Shredded Wheat, a food that makes red blood and good muscle. Two biscuits with hot milk supply all the energy you need for half a day's work. It is readycooked, ready-to-eat. Shredded Wheat
